SUPERVISOR COMMENTS

Several in-progress calls were reported at one time; however, officers did a great job of managing resources and prioritized needs as necessary. One investigation involved a hit-and-run vehicle that fled the scene and was found by the victim a short time later. Officers began searching the area and located the male walking in the area. They also located the vehicle a short distance away. The driver was identified as being involved in the collision and was obviously under the influence. He was later booked into jail. As the night went on, calls for service decreased.
